The Social Work Census was a large-scale survey of the social work profession in the United States and Canada, conducted from March 1 through June 30, 2024. The data from this survey is being aggregated and used to develop a comprehensive and up-to-date picture of who social workers are and what they do.

The Census included two sections.

The workforce study asked about

- education
- employment
- licensure
- demographics

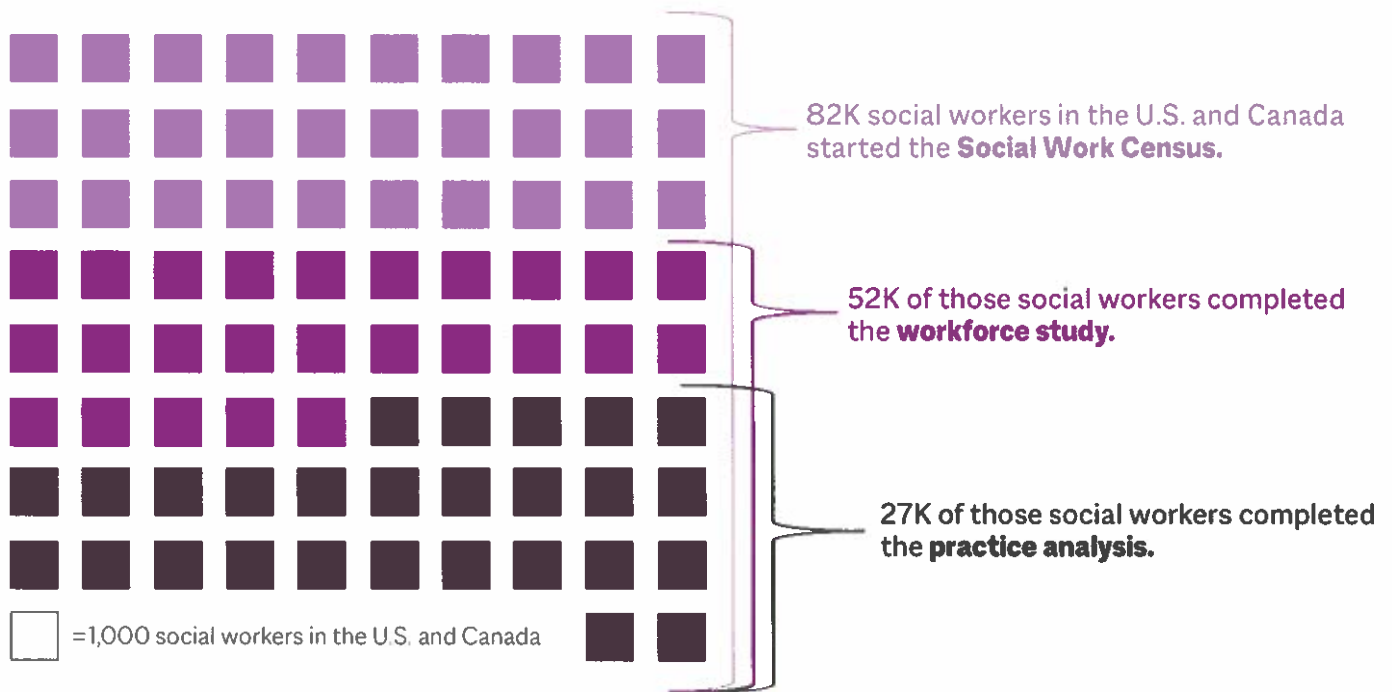

Results will be shared with the profession in early 2025.

The practice analysis asked about necessary, entry-to-practice

- knowledge
- skills
- abilities

Results will be used to develop content for the next version of the social work licensing competence assessments.

Census findings.

Findings from the workforce study are being analyzed by Dr. Joy Kim, associate professor at the Rutgers University School of Social Work.

Final reports on the data will be shared with the social work profession once analysis is completed in early 2025.
