NLRB Rules that Dartmouth Men's Basketball Players Are Employees

BY AMANDA CHRISTOVICH
UPDATED FEBRUARY 05, 2024 | 07:36 PM

- On Monday, the National Labor Relations Board declared that Dartmouth players can hold an election to unionize.
- The landmark ruling could shatter the NCAA's amateurism model.

Correct. 👍

There are 2 options for schools to operate college athletics programs moving forward.

1. Recognize athletes as employees and collectively bargain with them to allow for rules that on compensation and movement.
2. Reduce the amount of control exercised over athletes.

Michael McCann @McCannSportsLaw · 5h

The recognition of Dartmouth men's basketball players are employees is one of the most significant developments in sports, labor & employment law ever. Yes, Dartmouth--like Northwestern in 2014--can appeal. But the world's different now. We'll have coverage on @Sportico shortly.
