Create education without barriers through transformational partnerships.

- Ily Reiling, visual arts faculty member, continues organizing the department’s monthly artist lecture series. She has collaborated with the A.R. Mitchell Museum of Western Art to bring artists to campus to share their artistic journey and artistic method with students and community alike before show openings at the Mitchell Museum. The talks have expanded knowledge of artistic methods and inspired through hearing artist’s experiences.

An additional initiative from the Arts & Humanities Department is that of Trinidad State’s Arts & Literary online magazine, La Morada, which includes submissions from both students as well as staff. Spring 2023 Magazine released right before graduation.

Redefine our value proposition through accessibility, affordability, quality, accountability, resource development, and operational excellence.

- Dr. Epper updates the college community each month via The President's Open Exchange. It is an opportunity for executive updates from the president and vice presidents as well as conversation and discussion time too. The meetings are held virtually and are well attended by staff and faculty on both campuses.
