RE: Reminder – State Compounding Quality Training – FDA Expert Q&A Panel
Registration Now Open

As a reminder, the Food and Drug Administration (FDA) Compounding Quality Center of Excellence (CQCoE) has opened registration for the State Compounding Quality Training – FDA Expert Q&A Panel to be held on October 27, 2022.

On October 27 at 2-3:30 PM Eastern Time, the CQCoE is hosting a virtual Q&A panel with FDA experts on compounding quality exclusively for state regulators. This webinar will focus on compounding quality and Current Good Manufacturing Practice topics covering insanitary conditions and sterility assurance, airflow, and aseptic process simulations. Attendees may email relevant questions in advance to the CQCoE or ask them live during the panel discussion. Registration information can be accessed here.

The CQCoE encourages you to take the three self-guided online trainings below prior to attending the live webinar in order to effectively engage in the Q&A panel discussion. These three trainings are also eligible for home study continuing education credit.

- Insanitary Conditions & Sterility Assurance: Four-hour training
- Airflow: Four-hour training
- Aseptic Process Simulations \(Media Fills\): Two-hour training

For more information about the self-guided webinars or FDA Q&A Expert Panel registration, please contact the CQCoE at CompoundingQualityCoE@fda.hhs.gov.
