

Josh Scott

Vice Chair

Colorado Commission on Higher Education

Josh Scott currently serves as a board member, investor and advisor for several high-growth Colorado companies. In this capacity, he frequently works with company leaders on their talent strategies, which informs and further fuels his passion for public education.

Previously, Commissioner Scott was a board member for and then President of Guild Education, a high-growth, Colorado company whose mission is to unlock opportunity for America's workforce through education. Prior to Guild, Commissioner Scott co-founded Craftsy, an online education business which scaled rapidly to serve a community of more than 10 million passionate learners. This led Forbes to name Craftsy one of America's Most Promising Companies, placed Craftsy on the Inc. 500 list, and even earned a James Beard award. Craftsy was acquired by NBC Universal in 2017.

Earlier in his career, Commissioner Scott worked for Home Advisor, eBay, and Bain & Company and has business degrees from University of Michigan and University of California-Berkeley. He was born and raised in Detroit, Michigan and currently lives in Denver with his wife and middle-school-aged daughter.